Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 18, 19 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The equation for the upper pacing rate limit value as recited in claim 18 is different from the equation that appears in the specification (see equation 3 and 22) and the original claims 1-9. For the purposes of examination the equation as it appears in equation 22 and original claim 7 will be used.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 10-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over EP 0879618A1 in view of Cooper #5626622.

EP0879618A1 discloses a pacemaker having a measuring unit, a pace rate controller and a pacing rate limiter. The pacing rate limiter is responsive to the detection of an ischemic condition. The system determines this condition through impedance measurements, blood pressure and cardiac output, the patients breathing activity or by analyzing the patients ECG. Not disclosed by this reference is limiting the pacing rate to a value this is below the initial onset of an ischemic condition, the condition where energy supplied to the heart is less than the energy consumed.

Cooper discloses a rate responsive pacemaker. The reference teaches that it is desirable to set the upper pacing rate at a value that is just below the onset of an ischemic condition.

Given Coopers teaching, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to set the upper pacing limit in EP0879618A1 device at a level just below the onset of an ischemic condition to avoid any problems associated with prolonged exposure to this condition.

Regarding claim 11, since the claim only states that the pacing rate limiter limits the pacemaker to the boundaries in the equation which is representative of the onset of an ischemic condition, the claimed subject matter is considered provided for by the prior art.

The bioimpedance measurement of claim 12, the ECG analysis of claim 13 and the energy supplied and used from claims 14-16 would also be provided for by the EP document as noted above and for the reasons explained in reference to claim 11 above.

3. Claim 17 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 17-20 appear to avoid the prior art.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
